AfDevInfo is a new service tracking the mechanics of political and economic development in Sub-Saharan Africa.

At the heart of our delivery capability is a suite of integrated databases tracking and linking people, organisations, places, projects, meetings, disputes, financial transactions, documents, news and statistics.

Our aim is to provide a holistic, one-stop shop for objective information on the nuts and bolts of all aspects of development in Africa. We leave analysis and opinion to our clients.

We merge cutting edge data capture, processing and distribution technologies with pragmatic politico-economic research.

We aim to transform the high volume of unstructured, low quality electronic data now available into accessible, structured, high quality information.

AfDevInfo is available online by subscription. This allows you unlimited downloads from an expanding library of reports.

AfDevInfo is a one-stop shop for structured data on the political and economic infrastructures of Sub-Saharan Africa.

We draw together all publicly accessible data and present it in standard, usable formats of use to governments, businesses, professionals, academics and students.
AfDevInfo is work in progress.
We present incomplete, dynamic
data, systematically filling in pieces on an ever expanding jigsaw puzzle.

In support of resilient, democratic and accountable government, AfDevInfo is available
free to Africa
to all institutions and individuals.
