

Mainstreaming Gender in Debt and Resource Development Management

Debt Management Series 3, Dinesh Dodhia and Tina Johnson

The Commonwealth Secretariat has prepared this Handbook to enrich the information available to debt managers, gender advocates and other development practitioners and to make a contribution on the way forward with this topical issue. The Handbook highlights the linkages between debt and gender and discusses policies and action taken by international agencies and bilateral donors to promote and integrate gender issues in the provision of gender assistance. It suggests effective and practical ways through which developing country governments can integrate gender quality considerations in their debt and development resource management. The Handbook makes recommendations for debt recording systems, such as CS-DRMS, to better track the impact of debt and externally funded programmes on gender perspectives.

The GMS Toolkit

An Integrated Resource for Implementing the Gender Management System Series

The Commonwealth Secretariat has produced a series of reference manuals presenting the concepts and methodology of its innovative Gender Management System (GMS), with both general and sector-specific guidelines and tools for analysis and planning. This Toolkit brings all the GMS series materials together in one user-friendly, training-oriented package. It includes a CD-ROM of all the original manuals, an Action Guide to facilitate learning, a Training Guide for gender trainers, and a Change Management briefing. It represents excellent value for money. Details of the Gender Management System Series materials can be found on www.publications.thecommonwealth.org.

Chains of Fortune: Best Practices in Linking Local Women Producers with Global Markets

edited by Marilyn Carr

This volume brings together six case studies: three focusing on linking local producers with global markets; and three focusing on improving conditions of wage workers and outworkers already integrated into export markets through global value chains. Producer case studies are: a cocoa cooperative in Ghana which co-owns a UK chocolate company; family-based cooperatives in Samoa producing organic virgin coconut oil; new small cashew enterprises in Mozambique. Wage worker case studies are: women in the South African fruits industry; women in Bangladesh in the ready-made garment industry; women in newly created technology-enabled industries in India. Each case study presents concrete examples of shifting the balance to help the working poor benefit from globalization.

Gender Mainstreaming in Conflict Transformation: Women and Men in Partnership for Sustainable Peace

New Gender Mainstreaming Series on Development Issues

This book promotes a multi-faceted approach to conflict transformation that includes gender and youth, political, human rights and development perspectives. The book will help Commonwealth countries find long-term solutions to violent conflict. It addresses the structural causes, and argues that the participation of the whole of civil society is essential for building sustainable peace. The book considers: the peace table and peace agreements; human rights violations; truth and reconciliation commissions; international criminal tribunals; post-violence reconstruction and peace education.

Gender and Human Rights in the Commonwealth: some critical issues for action

New Gender Mainstreaming Series on Development Issues

This book brings together the papers commissioned for a Pan-Commonwealth Expert Group Meeting on Gender and Human Rights which took place at the Commonwealth Secretariat in London in February 2004. They address a wide range of issues, including the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW), gender-based violence, culture and the law, indigenous peoples, trafficking and migration, land and property rights, diversity and a life cycle approach to gender and human rights. The contributors include government policy makers, judges, lawyers, academics, representatives of civil society organisations and specialists from multilateral agencies including the Commonwealth Secretariat.

Mainstreaming Informal Employment and Gender in Poverty Reduction: A handbook for policy makers and other stakeholders

New Gender Mainstreaming Series on Development Issues

Martha Alter Chen, Marilyn Carr and Joann Vanek

In this book, the authors highlight the lack of attention to employment (especially informal employment) in poverty reduction strategies and point to the links between being informally employed, being a woman or a man, and being poor. The book draws widely on recent data and evidence of the global research policy network called Women in Informal Employment: Globalizing and Organizing (WIEGO) as well as the knowledge and experience of the grassroots organizations in the network. Liberally scattered with practical examples, it provides a convincing case for an increased emphasis on informal employment and gender in poverty reduction strategies, and sets out a strategic framework for policy makers. This book is supported by the Commonwealth Secretariat and IDRC.

Engendering Budgets
A Practitioners' Guide to Understanding & Implementing Gender-Responsive Budgets

Debbie Budlender and Guy Hewitt
The explosion of gender-responsive budgets (GRBs) in the last 8 years has been phenomenal. This guide, written by a practitioner and a veteran of international institutionalism provides background to GRBs, including a definition, a description of what these initiatives entail, and a map showing the countries where work has taken place to date - with examples of the diversity of experiences. It also provides the different rationales for undertaking the exercises. Case studies are included with suggestions on how to access resources.

Gender Mainstreaming in the Multilateral Trading System
A handbook for policy makers and other stakeholders

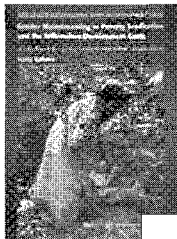

Mariama Williams
The social dimension of trade policy and trade liberalisation is now a common topic in many official trade fora. The discussion is proceeding with little or no attention to the different needs, constraints and interests of women. This handbook provides an integrated framework for a sustainable, pro-poor and gender-sensitive approach to trade policy-making. It presents recommendations on the key issues as well as strategies for different stakeholders. Each section includes case studies from Commonwealth countries.

Gender Mainstreaming in Poverty Eradication and the Millennium Development Goals
A handbook for policy makers and stakeholders

Naila Kabeer
This book brings together a set of arguments, findings and lessons from the development literature and the field of poverty eradication. Naila Kabeer examines the relationship between gender equality and economic growth, and concludes that although there does appear to be a trade-off between gender inequality and economic growth in the short term in some economies, policies aimed at achieving gender equality are essential for long-term, sustainable and equitable development.
