Some useful websites

AfricaPublishing.com

AfricaPublishing.com is an online publisher located at http://africapublishing.com

Still in its infancy, this is a business aimed at making Africa publications available and affordable to higher education students and professionals in Africa. AfricaPublishing.com utilises information communication technologies (ICT), taking personalisation of content presentation to new levels. The user can select his/her favourite news, articles, events, and discussions to appear on the homepage, as well as on the other pages of AfricaPublishing.com. The user can also receive updated information about new content by subscribing to the alerts. Also submit your articles directly or for consideration by the publisher.

The Portal on Cultural Rights: www.culturalrights.org

This portal is set up by the Interarts Foundation as part of its research and cooperation process on cultural rights and culture in human development - a process which includes as one of its key elements the Congress on Cultural Rights and Human Development organised within the framework of the Forum Barcelona 2004.

The portal will pool information and documentation on topics related to cultural rights, human development, cultural indicators, culture and human rights, and diversity. It aims to become a useful working tool for researchers, policy-makers and civil society alike by making this information publicly accessible and by providing a platform for electronic interaction and communication on these issues.

www.forumculturalmundial.org

The World Cultural Forum has launched a new Internet portal designed as a virtual cultural centre. The online hub is dedicated to culture and the arts, and aims to consolidate an international platform for artists, cultural managers and those responsible for cultural policies.

CulturE-ASEF

The information system for the Asia-Europe Cultural Exchange, a joint project of the Asia-Europe Foundation and Universes in Universe - Worlds of Art, has been updated and extended again.
